SCOTLAND'S PREMIER LONG DISTANCE ROUTE

Welcome to the 2013 Pocket Companion. This booklet aims to help you make the most of your experience by including essential information about the route, a range of accommodation, bag carrying services, transport, and useful telephone numbers. The route can be walked continuously, completed in sections, or used as a base accessing paths linked to the Way during shorter breaks.

SCOTLAND'S GREATEST

Scotland's first official long distance route links Milngavie to Fort William – a distance of 154km (96 miles) - from the northern outskirts of Glasgow, through the Loch Lomond and the Trossachs National Park to the foot of Ben Nevis at Fort William.

The terrain ranges from lowland moors, dense woodland and rolling hills, to high mountainous regions in the Scottish Highlands. These environments provide habitats for a diverse range of wildlife species, both flora and fauna.

GEOLOGY

The hard rock of the north meets the younger sandstone and conglomerates of the south and is known as the Highland Boundary Faultline. The division between the highlands and lowlands is best seen from Conic Hill.

HISTORIC ROUTES

The route echoes with the stories of the past including Rob Roy MacGregor as it follows historic routes - making use of droveroads, Military roads built by troops to help control the Jacobite Clans, old coaching roads and disused railway lines.

AMAZING WILDLIFE

Red deer on the hill, golden eagles soaring over the tops and the elusive feral goats left behind by long-gone communities - watch carefully for these and much more Scottish wildlife to be seen along your Way.

ESSENTIAL INFORMATION

The West Highland Way is way marked along its length using the official Long Distance Route 'thistle' symbol.

Sections at the southern end of the Way are suitable for inexperienced walkers and family groups. North of Rowardennan on Loch Lomond side the Way enters more remote country with little shelter, often rough and muddy path conditions for which vehicle access is difficult. Rowardennan is the furthest north private vehicles can access the east side of Loch Lomond from the south. Road access to Inversnaid is from the east, via Aberfoyle. The next point northwards for vehicle access is Inverarnan.

Walkers planning to tackle the whole route are strongly recommended to walk northwards from Milngavie to Fort William.

The southern section provides a 'warm up' for the more strenuous northern stages. For those who intend completing the route in sections over a period of time you can use the transport information section to help plan the trips. For short breaks see the section with two/ three day suggestions.

The time taken to complete the whole route will depend upon your fitness, the size of your pack and how much you wish to enjoy the scenery and villages you walk through. The whole Way can be completed in a week averaging around 21 km (13 miles) a day. Remember, the West Highland Way is a long hill walking expedition and walkers should be equipped accordingly. Stout boots are essential, as is waterproof and windproof clothing. The weather on the Way can change rapidly so be prepared.

There is nothing quite like walking the West Highland Way it really is a journey to remember.

TRANSPORT

The route is particularly well provided for with trains, buses, ferries and taxis. With a little planning they can deliver you and pick you up from your start and finish points. Milngavie and Fort William have good transport links, both being accessible by bus and rail. The West Highland Line also provides access to Crianlarich, Tyndrum, Bridge of Orchy and Fort William. City Link operate a bus service from Glasgow and Fort William, stopping at Inverarnan, Crianlarich, Tyndrum and White Corries (road end).

A lot of The West Highland Way users do the route as one continuous journey. However, it is becoming increasingly popular for the Way to be completed in sections over a period of time. Return visits to favourite sections is also on the increase with other local routes making up a two/three day break. Even a motoring holiday in Scotland can allow the opportunity to walk parts of this world famous route.

Using the transport and links listed you can tailor your break to meet your needs. Use TRAVELINE www.travelinescotland.com/welcome.do or call 0870 608 2 608 to update timetable information.

There are numerous free transport apps available for your smartphone or tablet - download one today!

Enjoy Scotland's outdoors responsibly

Everyone has the right to be on most land and inland water providing they act responsibly. Your access rights and responsibilities are explained fully in the Scottish Outdoor Access Code.

Whether you're in the outdoors or managing the outdoors, the key things are to:

- take responsibility for your own actions
- respect the interests of other people
- care for the environment.

Visit outdooraccess-scotland.com or contact your local Scottish Natural Heritage office.

KNOW THE CODE BEFORE YOU GO

outdooraccess-scotland.com

CAMPING

Many people enjoy camping as part of their experience. We strongly advise you make use of formal campsites, many of which have toilets, showers and drying facilities. See the accommodation sections for details.

East Loch Lomond Camping Byelaws are in place restricting wild camping from Balmaha to Rowardennan, for further information visit www.west-highland-way.co.uk and www.lochlomond-trossachs.org

WILD CAMPING

If you intend to wild camp outside the byelaws zone please follow the guidance included in the Scottish Outdoor Access Code.

- Wild camping is lightweight
- It involves small numbers, and
- Only for two or three nights in any one place.

You can camp in this way wherever access rights apply BUT NOT in enclosed fields of crops, near farm animals, near buildings, roads or historic structures.

DO NOT CAMP

- In enclosed fields of crops
- Near farm animals
- Near buildings, roads or historic structures.

LEAVE NO TRACE

- Take away all your litter
- Bury toilet waste
- Remove all traces of your tent pitch.

Please Do Not Assume you can use toilets and showers at formal facilities nearby that are privately owned. Be courteous and check in advance with an establishment if you can use their facilities and offer to pay for the service you receive.

DOGS

If taking your dog on the Way it must be kept under close control particularly near farm animals. Fields containing lambs and calves MUST be avoided. If you find yourself surrounded by farm animals protecting their young from a perceived threat you must remove yourself from the situation even if it means leaving your pet behind. Visit www.west-highland-way.co.uk for up-to-date information.

FARM ANIMALS

Stay well away from ALL farm animals and take any necessary steps to avoid close contact especially if they are accompanied by their young.

FIRES

Wherever possible, use a stove rather than light an open fire. If you do wish to light a fire, keep it small, under control and supervised – fires that get out of control can cause major damage, for which you might be responsible. Never light a fire on top of vegetation and do not damage living trees to get fuel. Please leave the fire-site safe and remove all evidence of the fire.

TOILETING

Toileting can create problems on a well used route such as the West Highland Way. Make as much use of the toilets available as possible. If a toilet is not available, find a private place well away from the path and at least 50m away from any watercourse. Dig a shallow soil latrine with your boot, stick or trowel and replace excavated material after use. For further information provided by the Mountaineering Council of Scotland visit www.mountaineering-scotland.org.uk/leaflets/toilets.html

BE PREPARED

- Wear suitable clothing, walking boots & waterproofs
- Take a map and compass and know how to use them
- Check local weather forecasts
- Plan within your capabilities
- Let someone know your route plans
- Plan for the unexpected by carrying a first aid kit, survival bag, torch and a whistle
- Mobile phone reception can be patchy, carry a phone supporting several service providers.

IN CASE OF AN EMERGENCY

PLEASE NOTE THE FOLLOWING:

- A Grid Reference for the emergency, plus other details of where you are.
- If the emergency occurs away from a road (this includes the path north of Rowardennan to Inverarnan) and you cannot easily get the injured person to a road, dial 999 or 12 from a mobile and ask for the police. The police will co-ordinate the situation and inform the relevant agencies.
- Have a history of the incident ready to tell to the emergency services and any other relevant details you can think of.
- The more accurate the information you can provide the faster the emergency services will reach the emergency and the quicker they will be able to deal with it once they arrive.

The Caledonian Challenge and Hike offer you 'The Walk of Your Life'.

The goal is for you to complete 54 (Challenge) or 24 (Hike) miles of the most rugged sections of the West Highland Way.

The Caledonian Challenge/Hike has helped raise funds for worthy causes throughout Scotland over the past 16 years. Since its birth the Caledonian Challenge has seen 15,000 participants take part, and has raised more than £12.5 million for charity. All the funds raised through the event are managed and distributed by the Scottish Community Foundation to help strengthen communities across Scotland.

There is plenty of time for you and your team-mates to sign up and prepare for the Challenge or the Hike. The deadline for entry is the end of March 2013.

ORGANISING AN EVENT ON THE WEST HIGHLAND WAY

If you intend holding any type of event along the whole or part of the route contact the WHW for a copy of the Events Policy and Procedure. This is required to assist visitor management and maintenance work scheduling along the whole route as well as avoiding conflicting events.

It would also be supportive of the Way if your event could also consider contributing back to the route by giving a donation to the route infrastructure.
